Thursday, 11 October, 2012

Doreen Kroeber & Andreas Zmuda are attempting a world record 100,000 mile trip in a "Trike" type microlight aircraft. Kroeber and Zmuda are from Berlin, Germany and have mapped out a trip that should take about 988 days that will take them around the world in their trike. KXDJ's Chris Samples spoke with Zmuda on Tuesday. Click here to listen to why they decided to do this.

You can track their progress and find out more about them at www.trike-globetrotter.com. They were scheduled to leave Perryton this Wednesday morning and will try to arrive in Tucumcari, NM later today.
